DAILY HEADBÄNGER

Monday • January 2, 2023

January is like a Monday but loooooonger.

MÖRNING MEME

TODAY IN HEADBÄNGER HISTORY

January 2, 1969 – Led Zeppelin play the first of four nights at the Whisky A Go-Go in Los Angeles during the band's first North American tour. Alice Cooper is the opening act and the group is billed as "Led Zeppelin featuring Jimmy Page, formerly of the Yardbirds." Page suffers from a fever and is forced to eliminate the 2nd set from this series of shows. The set list features all covers with songs like "I Can't Quit You Babe," "Train Kept A-Rollin'," "Dazed and Confused" and "For Your Love."

January 2, 1926 – The first edition of the legendary British music magazine Melody Maker is published, promising news and information for "all who are interested in the production of popular music." In the first issue, which sells for 3 pence, the features are on Dance Band news, Ukuleles and how to read music by sight.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO:

January 2, 1946 – Chick Churchill (born Michael George Churchill), keyboards (Ten Years After)

HEADBANGERS HEAVEN:

January 2, 1997 – Randy California (born Randy Craig Wolfe), guitarist with Spirit, drowns while rescuing his 12-year old son Quinn when he was sucked into a riptide in Molokai, Hawaii. He was 45. Together with Ed Cassidy (his stepfather), front-man Jay Ferguson, bassist Mark Andes and keyboardist John Locke, California founded the band Spirit. His stage name was given to him by Jimi Hendrix, who invited California to fly to England with him and be in his band. Randy's parents would not let him go because he was only 15. Walter Becker of Steely Dan has also cited California as an influence.

January 2, 2012 – Larry “Rhino” Reinhardt, guitarist for Iron Butterfly and Captain Beyond, dies of cirrhosis of the liver. He was 63. Early in his career, Reinhardt played with Dickey Betts and Berry Oakley before they went on to form the Allman Brothers Band. He was considered to be one of the top southern rock guitarists of all time.

January 2, 2018 – Rick Hall (born Roe Erister Hall), the “Father of Muscle Shoals Music,” dies of prostate cancer at his home in Alabama. He was 85. Rolling Stone magazine said, “Hall’s Grammy-winning production touched nearly every genre of popular music from country to R&B, and his Fame Studio and publishing company were a breeding ground for future legends in the worlds of songwriting and session work, as well as a recording home to some of the greatest musicians and recording artists of all time.”

January 2, 2019 – Daryl Frank Dragon, known as “Captain” from the duo Captain & Tennille, dies from kidney failure in Prescott, Arizona. He was 76. Although Daryl and his singing partner Toni Tennille had divorced in 2014, she was there by his side when he passed away. Early in his career, Dragon was a keyboardist for The Beach Boys, with Mike Love giving him the nickname “Captain Keyboard.” He and Tennille later had huge success in the 70’s with hits like “Love Will Keep Us Together”, “Do That to Me One More

Time”, and “Muskrat Love.”
